What We've Been Up To

1

Supporting Autism Awareness

Our founder, Natalie, recently took part in an interview for the upcoming documentary Autism Unmasked. We're incredibly proud to be involved in helping raise awareness and understanding of autistic experiences.

2

Building Connections

We're continuing to make some fantastic new connections which will help us provide even more support, opportunities and resources for our families in the future.

3

Community Outreach

June saw us attend our very first community outreach event at Kings Langley Carnival.

The support we received from the local community was incredible and it was wonderful speaking with so many families and professionals about NeuroRelate and the support we provide.

Growing the Team at NeuroRelate

We're delighted to welcome two fantastic new volunteers to the team at NeuroRelate. They'll be supporting our work by helping to identify funding opportunities and creating engaging social media content that raises awareness of our mission, services, and impact within the community. Their skills and enthusiasm will help us continue to grow our reach and strengthen the support we provide to neurodivergent individuals and families.

Neurodiversity Workshops for Businesses & Organisations

NeuroRelate offers neurodiversity training and workshops for businesses, schools, and organisations to help build more inclusive environments. We provide staff awareness sessions, practical strategies, and tailored training.
